

SR&ED (Scientific Research and Experimental Development) is the largest and most important tax incentive program in Canada.

The program rewards companies that perform R&D in an effort to make Canada a more economically competitive and technologically advanced nation and it has been in existence for over 20 years. The SR&ED program in Canada is one of the most generous R&D programs in the world. You can go back 2 fiscal years to claim for eligible expenditures. This is not a grant – you are entitled to this money under the income tax act.

If you answer yes to any of the following questions you could be sitting on an untapped refund.

- Have you developed any new products, or developed enhanced features to existing products?
- Have you built any prototypes?
- Have you solved any technological challenges in the course of your work?
- Have you developed any methods to increase productivity or efficiency in your business?

What are your competitors doing with their refund?

There are only 3 criteria for eligibility...

- Technological uncertainty
- Technological advancement
- Systematic investigation

You could qualify for a refund worth up to 68% of your expenses related to experimental projects.

but how do you get the credit?
